Fauci seeks health info of Wuhan lab staff

Beijing Silent On Releasing Data, Denies Virus Link

U.S. infectious disease expert Dr. Anthony Fauci has called on China to release the medical records of nine people whose ailments might provide vital clues into whether Covid-19 first emerged as the result of a lab leak. The Financial Times reported on Thursday that Fauci had seen the medical records of the nine people who were exposed to Wuhan lab staff in 2019. Did they really get sick, and if so, what did they get sick with? The report quoted Fauci as saying that about three of them have symptoms of the virus he is best known for. Fauci continued to believe the virus was first transmitted to humans through animals, pointing out that even if the lab staff did have Covid, they could not have introduced it into the population, he said.

'FB to end exceptions to politicians' posts'

San Francisco: Facebook plans to announce on Friday that it will no longer keep posts by politicians up on its site by default if their posts break its rules, said two people with knowledge of the company's plans. Facebook has allowed posts from political figures to remain on its platform even if they have violated its rules. The change, which is set to be implemented by the end of the year, would mean that posts from politicians would be removed from the platform unless they are reported by users.

US finds no proof that UFOs were alien spacecraft: Report

Washington: US intelligence officials have found no evidence that a series of unidentified aerial phenomena reported by Navy pilots in recent years were alien spacecraft, but the report does say that the sightings remain unexplained in many cases. The report, which was released on Thursday, says that the sightings were not unusual and that they could be explained by natural phenomena.

Danish lawmakers give nod to build an artificial island

Copenhagen: Danish lawmakers have given the go-ahead to a $3.3 billion artificial island in Copenhagen that will house at least 35,000 people who will be connected to downtown by a fast-track tunnel and a subway line. The approval of the project, which is being led by the Danish government, marks a significant step in the development of the island.
